

Project Management in Fragile Environments

About the Course

Good project management is the basis of project impact, and is essential in delivering results for any development and aid organisation. Our Project Management in Fragile Environments (PMO) course is designed to give participants improved capacity running challenging projects in challenging humanitarian environments.

The highly interactive four day course uses a collaborative learning approach, based on a series of real-life case studies. It takes account of the latest trends in funding, changing accountability demands, technological advancement, and management theory. This course is suitable for those who are already familiar with the basics of project management in humanitarian or development cooperation.
